

Dear NAHMA Members,

I know you are aware of the upcoming (May 9th) NPR/Frontline Documentary, “Poverty, Politics and Profit”, “an investigation into the billions spent on housing low-income people, and why so few get the help they need. The film examines the politics, profits and problems of an affordable housing system in crisis.” Here is the trailer for it:

<http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/frontline/film/poverty-politics-and-profit/>

Please find attached Frontline toolkit, which you can share within your organizations and among partners but do not distribute publicly. In addition, please find an attached a social media toolkit, which provides some suggestions for ways to highlight the positive impact of the Housing Credit.

Please note that the talking points were developed by an industry coalition and will be updated, once we see what’s in the Documentary.

Thanks,

NAHMA Staff